'Migration is an expression of the human aspiration for dignity, safety, and a better future. It is part of the social fabric, part of our very make-up as a human family' - Ban Ki-moon

There are currently 272 million migrants in the world.

Today we celebrate the massive contribution that refugees and migrants make across the world. Professors Ugur Sahin and Özlem Türeci, a couple whose parents moved to Germany from Turkey and without whom we would not have the COVID-19 vaccine, are a great example of the importance of continued movement and the resulting expansion of knowledge. All people have the same right to knowledge, though millions are without access to basic education.

It is so important that we strive to give displaced people access to high quality education, so that they can continue to contribute confidently to their host country and explore their full potential.

Please consider donating to our Christmas campaign and give the gift of education this year.

👋 Meet the team 👋

Meet Gemma!

1. Can you tell us briefly about yourself and your role at ConnectionHub?

I graduated earlier this year from the University of Exeter where I studied Law. It has been quite a tumultuous time graduating in the middle of a recession and a pandemic, but it has been great to get involved in such a worthy cause! I am currently in the partnerships team, where we are looking for other great organisations to work with to achieve our goals.

2. Why did you want to get involved with ConnectionHub?

Over the summer I decided I wanted to be more involved in legal work that I really believe in, when I heard about ConnectionHub and knew that I wanted to get involved!

3. What do you enjoy about being on the team?

I really enjoy reaching out to others to hear their ideas to help build our programmes and shape our aims as an organisation - it has been great to get other perspectives and advice from some big names!

🌟 Take a look at our website for volunteering opportunities or to donate to our Christmas campaign! 🌟

Our students may not be able to visit the hub at the moment due to COVID restrictions but they are still getting regular 1-1 online mentor support and access to high quality e-learning, as well as engaging weekly seminars.

We can't wait until lockdown is over and they are able to return to face to face lessons.

If you would like to support our students and make their 2021 a bit better, have a look at our Christmas campaign! 📌

📌 11 days until Christmas! 📌

If you are looking for easy printable gifts/vouchers this year, have a look at donating a small amount to refugees in Greece. Making a donation on behalf of someone is a great ethical gift or stocking filler. You can print our thank you e-card and address it to your friend/family member.

Christmas is a difficult time for displaced people, who may face the new year feeling directionless. Your donation will pay for a student to access high quality education, which gives refugees and asylum seekers momentum and a sense of value in an incredibly challenging environment.

Meet Mara!

1. Can you tell us briefly about yourself and your role at ConnectionHub?

With a degree in Music and passion for helping people, I joined ConnectionHub's as an HR Assistant. Alongside my amazing team, I am to create a great working environment for the organisation's volunteers!

2. Why did you want to get involved with ConnectionHub?

I wanted to give back to the world and join ConnectionHub in its mission to bring education to refugees and asylum seekers. At the same time, I have the opportunity to learn more about HR and put into practice the skills I develop as I am studying towards my CIPD certificate.

3. What do you enjoy about being on the team?

I am motivated by helping people and as the HR team is at the heart of an organisation, it is the perfect team I can thrive in. I enjoy meeting with different people and knowing that my work plays a part in a greater mission.

As we're getting towards the end of National Career Month, we thought it was a good time to mention our Job Ready Programme!

This programme offers our students the chance to learn a range of skills and increase their employability.

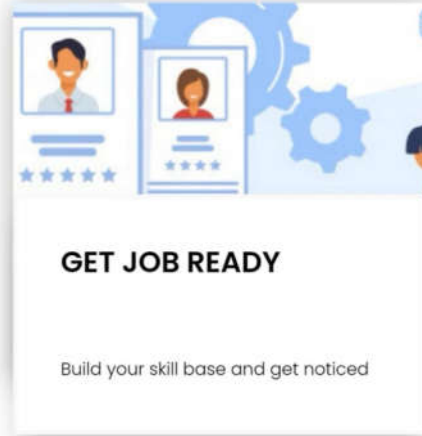

They can earn certificates in marketing, data science, IT, coding and project management to name a few.

Our HR team and mentors support them with their CVs and cover letters, and once they are onto their appropriate course, they receive weekly mentoring and academic support.

We want to give our students the educational toolbox to thrive, and believe that the Job Ready Programme does just this.

Every woman and girl deserves to live a life free from violence.

Earlier this week we saw International Day for the Elimination of Violence Against Women. A key step in ending violence towards women is ensuring that they have equal access to quality education. This education can give them the confidence and knowledge to make empowered choices, and allow them to achieve financial independence.

Our programme Women in Crisis Leadership aims to give women the key to leading a better life. Take a look at our previous post to find out more.

Meet one of our newest team members: head of campagins, Ella!

1. Can you tell us briefly about yourself and your role at ConnectionHub?

I studied Politics at the University of Edinburgh. I am in the Marketing, Fundraising and Operations team working on campaigns.

2. Why did you want to get involved with ConnectionHub?

I really enjoyed being part of my unis Student Action for Refugee society and wanted to continue this sort of work after uni. I also wanted to gain experience working for a charity, so when I found out about Connection Hub I was excited as it allowed me to do both!

3. What do you enjoy about being on the team?

I'm fairly new to ConnectionHub and so far I love how friendly everyone is and the amount of responsibility we're given over handling our work. I'm excited to continue working with the team at Connection Hub.

'Today's students are tomorrow's leaders. They are the ones who will help to foster peace and stability.' - UNHCR

We thought we should let you know a bit more about what our students get up to on the ground by telling you about one of our newer programmes.

This is Women in Crisis Leadership, which is a programme specifically developed to help refugee women improve self-reliance and outreach for education, health and integration. Within this programme students can learn about gender studies, and additional leadership, productivity and English language skills.

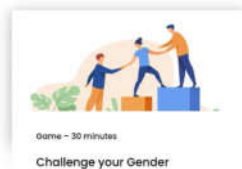

Have a look through the photos to see what our students learn about, and our exciting new seminar opportunity with Rule of Law Specialist Shadi Safavi who has 15 years of experience working with UN Department of Peacekeeping Operations (UNMISS), UNICEF and UNDP.

To find out more about the programmes we do, have a look at the website.

At ConnectionHub we strongly believe in the power of blended (face to face and online) learning in maintaining motivation and building lasting confidence.

We currently have 7 excellent mentors from all over the world who support several students each in achieving their academic potential and acquiring new skills relevant to building a better future.

Despite the hub being closed due to national COVID restrictions, this week mentors led 17 zoom sessions with students.

Another Meet the Team!

Have a read to find out more about Albany's experience at ConnectionHub.

1. Can you tell us briefly about yourself and your role at ConnectionHub?
I'm from England and studied French and English Literature at the University of Sheffield. I am on the Marketing, Fundraising and Operations team and am just starting my role as content lead.

2. Why did you want to get involved with ConnectionHub?
I loved working with refugees whilst I was at uni so when I saw the ConnectionHub role it looked perfect. I was looking for some writing and marketing experience too, and I loved that there was the opportunity to work on multiple teams if you wanted. I am passionate about the power of education and helping people so this gave the chance to explore both.

3. What do you enjoy about being on the team?
We are given a lot of independence and involved in some big decision making. It's so interesting watching an organisation grow and having the chance to play a role in its growth. I also feel like I've met some really interesting and cool people, and I think it's great that we're working together remotely from all over the world.

Today is World Kindness Day 2020.

It is important to remember that everyone deserves kindness no matter where they come from, what they have experienced and which language they speak. Refugees face a lot of stigmatisation and resistance, and it's so important to offer support and kindness whenever possible.

At ConnectionHub we believe that education is a powerful tool to help bring people out of such an oppressive environment and give them the confidence to thrive.

If you would like to help improve the lives of refugees on Lesbos, we are always looking for donations and gifts in kind, and have a wishlist on this link.

Today is World Science Day for Peace and Development!

At ConnectionHub we believe that refugees can play a key role in improving the world in which we live. We have courses in COVID awareness and prevention, data science and medical translation, as well as peace and conflict studies. We want to give refugees access to a broad education which will allow them to use their skills to make their world and the world around them a better place.

It's been a while since we've done a Meet the Team!

This weeks volunteer is Rosa, one of the Mentor Team Leaders.

Have a read to find out about Rosa and what it's like to volunteer for ConnectionHub.

1. Can you tell us briefly about yourself and your role at ConnectionHub?

From Lisbon, I've been a volunteer since my teenage years. Permanently interested in people and cultures I have a master's in anthropology and a post grad in migration studies. At CH I'm one of the mentors team leaders - supporting people from different parts of the world and helping them take the most out of this educational experience (well taking and giving!)

2. Why did you want to get involved with ConnectionHub?

For a long time I followed closely the refugee situation in Lesbos. Unable to travel in person, I got excited about the possibility of collaborating even if remotely. Plus a project that emphasises the importance of education as a tool for empowerment... seemed like my kind of project !

3. What do you enjoy about being on the team?

Hard to say... Between talking to people, solving problems, learning a lot and experimenting... I guess I'm discovering a whole new world of exciting and meaningful work.

Today marks the 75th anniversary of the establishment of the UN.

The UN aims to maintain international peace and security, protect human rights, deliver humanitarian aid, promote sustainable development and uphold international law.

Without the UN, we wouldn't have UNHCR, the UN agency mandated to aid and protect refugees and forcibly displaced people. Education plays a central role in their protection mandate.

Today is International Day for the Eradication of Poverty.

Access to education is a globally recognised solution to poverty. It can open the door to resources, skills and jobs needed not just to survive but to thrive.

According to UNESCO, if all students in low-income countries had just basic reading skills, an estimated 171 million people could escape extreme poverty. If all adults completed secondary education, we could cut the global poverty rate by more than half.

At ConnectionHub we are committed to helping end poverty through education.

WORLD STUDENTS DAY

Today is UN World Students Day.

3.7 million refugee children are out of school. Just 3% of refugees go to university, despite it often being a primary aim.

It is very difficult for refugees to access and continue education with such limited stability and support. This is why blended learning is so important and has seen such excellent results. At ConnectionHub we provide access to high level online education, with regular face to face support. We aim to harness the power of education to aid integration and encourage a decent future.

EVERYONE has a right to education.

There is our German workshop delivered by Daniel from the German Institute for Brain Based Learning. (<http://giobl.com/>)

When disasters like the Moria fire strike it is not the time to back down, it is the time to step up, to adapt and to develop.

Following the destruction of the Moria camp, we at ConnectionHub have been reshaping our services to ensure we are doing all we can to meet the needs of the current situation.

In response to the crisis, we now have a renewed focus on programmes which are directly relevant to the situation on the ground; courses such as psychological first aid, conflict and peace studies, intercultural communication and medical and legal translation. Through these new offerings members of the refugee population will receive training in the skills most needed right now.

We hope you will support us at this challenging time as we continue to use education as a tool for change.

Head to our website to join us in our mission, and if you haven't already then please donate to our fundraiser!

Thousands of people are still sleeping on the streets of Lesbos. The situation is messy. People appear to be being relocated but there is little certainty about a more permanent solution.

We will be giving updates soon on the adaptations we are making in light of the recent crisis.

In the meantime please keep sharing our fundraiser. We are so grateful for the donations we have already had! It will all go a long way in giving people much needed security and stability.

Update from the ground

It's been almost a week since Moria burnt down and people are still sleeping in the streets. Many are in desperate need of food, water and shelter, but road blockages and coordination complications have made access to aid difficult.

FUNDRAISING!

After the news of last night's fire, we have set up a fundraiser to help residents of Moria find safe housing.

Residents of the camp have fled violence and persecution in their home countries to find safe refuge in Greece, only to have that disappear over night.

Thousands have scattered and are being blocked from entering nearby towns due to fears of coronavirus spreading. They have no food and water and nowhere to go.

Each small donation will help us find protective housing for vulnerable people; defending against the spread of coronavirus and allowing them a place to shelter in this isolating time.

Please like and share!

Last night a fire devastated Moria refugee camp on Lesbos. Nearly 13,000 vulnerable migrants and refugees are currently without food, water and shelter just days after being collectively quarantined due to a Covid-19 outbreak.

As you will have seen on the news, a fire gutted Moria overnight. A representative from Doctors Without Borders states, 'The whole camp has practically burned to the ground, there is very little standing.'

There are currently thousands of people without shelter having fled the fire. There is limited support available due to the development of coronavirus in the camp last week, and subsequent blockages to accessing Moria.

Please keep the Moria residents in your thoughts. We are hoping for an effective emergency response and that longer term support systems and housing will be available.

Time for our second installment of the 'Meet the Team' series.

This week its Olivia! Have a read below 😊

Tell us briefly about yourself and your role at ConnectionHub.

I am a Mathematics with Spanish graduate from the University of Manchester. At ConnectionHub I am part of the Student Support and Education & Innovation teams as well as a Mentor.

Why did you want to get involved with ConnectionHub?

I wanted to gain experience with NGOs and as a startup ConnectionHub offered the opportunity to be very involved in the creation of the programme. As well as believing strongly in the values and mission of ConnectionHub, the objectives of each team aligned well with the different sides of my degree.

What do you enjoy about being on the team?

I have loved working with different people, both on the ground and around the UK to fine tune different aspects of the programme to be able to give the best possible opportunities and support to our students.

As you can see below and in the countless articles that have popped up from March onwards, during the last few months of the pandemic we have seen how important it is for students to be able to continue their education. This is something that millions of displaced people face on a daily basis. Accessing education is a serious challenge for refugees and asylum seekers, and a key step in securing a fulfilling future in their home or host country. Education means structure, momentum, routine, future thinking, support, self confidence and community, as well as gaining skills and qualifications. This is what we strive to provide at ConnectionHub.

The results reveal that:

- 80% of respondents agreed that the coronavirus pandemic had made their mental health worse. 41% said it had made their mental health "much worse", up from 32% in the previous survey in March. This was often related to increased feelings of anxiety, isolation, a loss of coping mechanisms or a loss of motivation.
- 87% of respondents agreed that they had felt lonely or isolated during the lockdown period, even though 71% had been able to stay in touch with friends.

is being made aware of the physical health consequences and also the mental health consequences of the pandemic. However, the fact that the virus itself is not contagious in an adult is not an indication that the effects of the pandemic on children's mental health will be less severe. The mental health and education for young people will be affected. The mental health and education for young people will be affected. The mental health and education for young people will be affected.

It comes after an opinion piece in The Lancet Child & Adolescent Health warned of the damaging long term consequences of a lack of face-to-face contact among young people and their peers.

Prof Ellen Townsend, professor of psychology at the University of Nottingham, who organised the letter, said mental health problems such as anxiety were already rising in young people before lockdown.

She told the BBC there was evidence that growing feelings of loneliness and social isolation as a result of school closures during the pandemic could be making that worse, especially among teenagers.

• Among more than 1,000 respondents who were accessing mental health support in the three months leading up to the crisis (including from the NHS, school and university counsellors, private providers, charities and helplines), 31% said they were no

However, reviews have also noted the adverse effects of school closure, including economic harms to working parents, health-care workers, and other key workers being forced from work to children, and to society due to loss of parental productivity, transmission from children to vulnerable grandparents, loss of education, harms to child welfare particularly among the most vulnerable pupils, and nutritional problems especially to children for whom free school meals are an important source

First up is India, a member of the Marketing, Fundraising and Communications team, and Assistant to the Director.

Have a read below to find out a bit more about India and what she thinks of working with ConnectionHub.

Tell us briefly about yourself and your role at ConnectionHub.

I am a history graduate from the University of Exeter. At ConnectionHub I am in the Marketing, Fundraising, and Communications team and am also the Assistant to the Director.

Why did you want to get involved with ConnectionHub?

I wanted to use my time in lockdown to do something worthwhile and found ConnectionHub; an organisation with a mission I thoroughly support and am now 100% committed to.

What do you enjoy about being on the team?

I really enjoy how much responsibility we have. We are encouraged to challenge ourselves and I have learnt so much working here. It is also wonderful to work alongside such passionate and intelligent people.
