Το έτος 2022 έληξε με Χριστούγεννα. 🎄

Friday, December 23rd is Christmas Day. 🎄

Defence for Children International Greece wishes Merry Christmas and happy festive days to all those who celebrate.

At this day, we cannot forget all the people on the move around the world who face legal and social barriers to see their basic rights respected.

Millions of people, children, women and men, escape armed conflict and various forms of persecution in their countries of origin, forcing them to become asylum seekers.

These people cannot spend special days with their relatives and loved ones. Children cannot open their gifts, with a big smile on their face.

Most of the times, they find themselves just trying to survive, as they are unable to access their most basic social rights, such as food and shelter.

It is our duty, as human rights defenders to never forget them and speak out against inequality. We urge all States and governments around the world to respect their commitments to international law and international agreements.

Solidarity must rule the world, and unity must be our flag! 🇺🇳

Today, December 20th, marks the International Human Solidarity Day.
/ˌsɒlɪˈdærɪti/: mutual support within a group.

While the world population reached 8 billion individuals in 2022, the same year the number of people forcibly displaced reached 103 million. Children alone, families, women and men, that fled their home country due to armed conflicts, human rights violations, persecution, disasters, and poverty still remain at high risk of violence, discrimination, poor living conditions, and livelihood loss.

As DCI Greece, since the beginning of our operation, our mandate is to guarantee fair access to the rights of each individual, and we strive to advocate for the most vulnerable.

The concept of solidarity keeps defining our work, identifying ourselves as part of just one group, the Human group, where no one should be alone.

During International Human Solidarity day, we would like to celebrate diversity while enhancing unity and human solidarity. We would like to encourage everyone to make small actions in their daily life, in order to make each community a welcoming place for all human beings. 💜

Today, December 10th, is the International Day of Human Rights.

According to Article 1 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (1949), 'All human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights'

Human beings are born free and equal in dignity and rights.

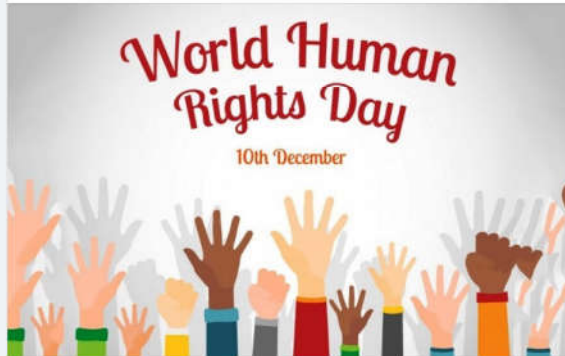

Human Rights are universal and inalienable, and they are an everyday reminder to preserve each individual's humanity in case of prejudices and brutalities.

In particular, the theme of the #humanrightsdays2022 is Dignity, Freedom, and Justice for All, meaning that no one has to be left behind, guaranteeing fair access to the different needs without any kind of discrimination.

DCI Greece is dedicated to the lawful application of Human Rights in all kind of environments, advocating for the most marginalized groups against discrimination, violence, and undignified circumstances.

We celebrate Humans and the Rights each individual carries with them, and we invite everyone to come together and support our strive to justice and equality in a spirit of universal solidarity.

The protest movement that erupted after the death of a young woman, Mahsa Amini, in the custody of the morality police the 16th of September is already giving place to social advances.

As a result, a senior Iranian official announced the past weekend that Iran had abolished the morality police, as reported by media.

It is also reported that Iran's parliament and judiciary are reviewing the country's mandatory hijab law.

It is our labour, as human rights defenders, to stand with Iranian women and speak out for gender equality and women freedom worldwide. 🙌

The Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, along with other international treaties, recognize this gender equality.

For more information on the matter, check the 'New York Times' article 📄

According to the article it hasn't been confirmed that it was abolished yet. Al Jazeera reports that morality police has been "suspended" which has a temporary meaning and not permanent as the verb "abolish".

'For many years my husband used to beat me. In Turkey I was raped and got pregnant. In Greece, I finally regained my identity and my strength. Now I'm focused on studying and working to create a better future for myself and my child'.

On Friday, on the international day for the elimination of violence against women, Fatemeh told us she wished the world could hear her story.

She is one the many resilient women that left their country of origin to put an end to the violence that they were undergoing, and faced multiple dangers along the way.

Once in Lesbos, our team, in the context of the current legal program, approached Fatemeh and ran a vulnerability assessment and presented her rights as asylum-seeker and as a woman. Moreover, during her asylum interview she was properly supported to be recognized as a victim/survivor of gender based violence.

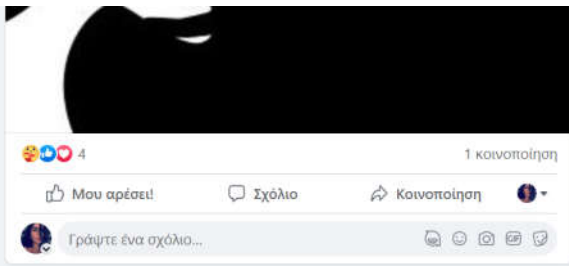

Fatemeh now benefits from the International Protection, and is focusing on empowering herself to start a dignified life in Greece.

Fatemeh path has not come to an end yet, and our legal program will keep follow-up her case alongside other women's with similar stories.

Our team is dedicated to advocate for all women, single and with a family, victims of gender based violence and human rights violations. By sharing our work and efforts, we aim to spread awareness on the issues women on the move face in their country and in their journey until Greece, and the steps that can be done to prevent and/or stop the cycle of violence.

Yesterday, in view of the UN International Day of Solidarity with the Palestinian people, a special event was co-organized by DCI Greece, Femartact and To Mov

It was dedicated to the people, including the children, affected by the armed conflict in the Palestinian territory. DCI's latest report on children in war, showed that 250.000.000 children are now living in war context.

<https://defenceforchildren.org/.../Children-and-Armed...>

Many of them reach Europe, seeking international protection.

It is our duty to recognise the impact of war on their life and recognise it actively, while raising awareness for their condition and the international responsibility to protect them.

We are very grateful for everyone who attended, both physically and online, as well as our speakers:

- Nantina Tsekeri, Director of Defence for Children International Greece,
- Khaled Quzmar, General Director of Defense for Children International Palestine (online from Palestine)
- Alexia Tsouni, President of FemArtact,
- Dr Sahar Yousef Alkawasmeh, General Director of ADWAR Roles for Social Change Association, from Hebron, West Bank, Palestine
- Iren Kontou, Child Protection Officer of Defence for Children International Greece
- Sissy Vovou, Vice-President of To Mov Association.

Thank you all for your active participation 🙏

Today is the International Day for the Elimination of Violence against Women.

The UN General Assembly defines violence against women as 'any act of gender-based violence that results in, or is likely to result in, physical, sexual or psychological harm or suffering to women, including threats of such acts, coercion or arbitrary deprivation of liberty, whether occurring in public or in private life.'

Still today, violence against women and girls remains the most pervasive human rights violation around the world.

The vulnerability and risk to be a victim of GBV increases exponentially when it comes to women and girls on the move, who are much more exposed to violence and lack access to their basic social rights.

The majority of women we support are victims of sexual violence and harassment, human trafficking, as well as Female Genital Mutilation.

We will keep advocating to prevent and eliminate violence against women and girls around the world, calling for global action to increase awareness and create opportunities for discussion on challenges and solutions.

At the same time, since awareness is fundamental for self-empowerment it is crucial through training and informative sessions to educate both women and men about GBV, how to recognize it, which are the risks and the help they can receive.

Children everywhere should be considered key partners in putting an end to all forms of violence. Therefore, in 2022, DCI published the Children in War report, a publication that listened to children's concerns regarding meaningful participation, as well as providing them with safe pathways. Through consultations with children in countries affected by conflicts, DCI reinforced its position regarding the importance of children's participation. Children have an in-depth understanding of how conflict has affected their lives, their protection, and their possibilities of influencing change.

The scale and gravity of violence against children in armed conflict calls for immediate and concerted action by the United Nations, states, donors, the humanitarian community, researchers, and civil society to meet their obligations to ensure children are safe from harm. We need to: (1) Increasing children and youth participation in the inter-governmental space (2) Realising the potential of children and young people within the UN system (3) Engagement and mobilisation of children and young people (4) Enhance accountability for war crimes and transparency in reporting.

Universal Children's day is not just a day to celebrate children for who they are, but to bring awareness to children around the globe that experience violence in forms of abuse, exploitation or discrimination, to children living on the streets, or to children immersed in armed conflict.

Too many children are still suffering and states fail to fulfil their obligations regarding the future generations. We need to collectively intensify our efforts in favour of Children in the world, who are the future citizens of this world.

As established by the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child, children have the fundamental right to express their views and have them taken seriously. Children and young people have first hand experience of the hardships and challenges that they face in their communities. They are capable of observing and assessing these issues and proposing solutions. As civil society challenges democracies to uphold justice and equality, children and young people hold the key to providing special knowledge and innovative approaches to bringing about changes in their communities and regions, and improving overall society.

Making children partners in change means holding governments accountable to a bigger and more united public, leading to a sustainable path of development. We advocate for the creation an inclusive world where every child, whatever their background or situation, has the chance to harness their talents, create a bright future that fulfils their potential and play an active role in transforming society.

Each year, November 20th reminds us that humanity must give children the best it can provide. This day reminds us of the necessity of acting in favour of the well-being of children in the whole wide world.

Yesterday, P. had yet another Narrative Exposure Therapy session with our psychologist.

P. is a single mother, victim of trafficking and of torture, both in her country of origin and during her trip to Greece. The consistent sessions have helped her acknowledge her trauma and work on it, without getting re-traumatized.

Through yesterday's session, P. concentrated on a flower, that represented a happy moment of her life.

The entire session was a very powerful moment of joy, full of funny stories and laughs. Narrating these memories out loud she realized that her life includes also beautiful moments that her pain had buried down for so long.

She left our offices with a smile on her face, empowered and ready to attend the critical appointment of her asylum interview, the next morning.

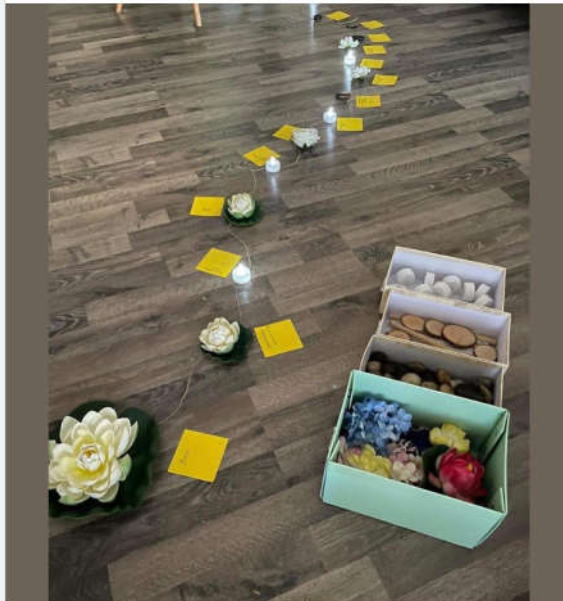

The Narrative Exposure Therapy is a very unique and innovative technique. With one to one sessions with our psychotherapist once a week, the aim is to empower our beneficiaries through the narration of their own story, with the goal of increasing their sense of value, safety and belonging.

The flowers represent the joyful moments , the rocks the painful and traumatic ones while the candles the loss of a person.

By healing me, I heal you
By healing me, I heal the world
By healing me, I heal the justice system

The week starts on a very positive note in Lesvos. ☺

Today, one of our beneficiaries from Afghanistan granted the Refugee Status in Greece!

F. falls into the category of the young boys, currently transitioning to adulthood. Being a male and originating from Afghanistan, he was mainly targeted for deportation in Turkey.

As a result of numerous denied attempts to apply for asylum or benefit from medical treatment in Greece's neighboring country, F. arrived in Lesvos at the end of August.

Upon completing the quarantine period, our team scheduled a meeting with F. to inform him about his rights and the procedures he was supposed to undergo in order to apply for International Protection in Greece. Despite the hardships he had to suffer in Turkey, he was called to explain the reasons why it would not be in his best interest to be deported back, in the context of the Admissibility interview.

Our team supported him with this first interview, where he presented detailed information on how Turkey was not a safe country for him. After we drafted and submitted a legal report to further strengthen his case, his admissibility interview was successful!

F. was finally able to undergo the Merit asylum interview, and provide the founded reasons that led him to flee his country of origin, Afghanistan. Once again, a legal report was submitted and today we finally received the good news! F. has finally granted the refugee status.

With the constant support of our legal project, he will start the procedures to obtain his documents, such as the passport, in order to finally start a new chapter of his life.

! Watch here our Director's intervention at the Global Forum on Justice for Children and Deprivation of liberty taking place these days in Mauritania. Nantina took stock on the progress made in relation to children on the move three years after the UN Global Study on the matter. "Deprivation of liberty does not only translate into deprivation of rights, but also into deprivation of visibility and love. The time is critical and we must be alert of the 'de facto' detention facilities around the globe. Abolishing detention of children on the move is not enough on itself. We need to look into the 'creative' ways States have come up with in order to keep depriving Children of their liberty."

Watch the entire speech here:

A roadmap of future actions in relation to the implementation of the UN Global Study on Children deprived of their liberty will follow in the next weeks. Stay tuned.

'I think I will finally be able to sleep tonight. My girls are safe.'

M. is a mother of 2 from Sierra Leone. She left her country of origin to save her two girls from undergoing the Female Genital Mutilation Procedure she had to suffer from. She wished them to grow up free and be able to make their own choices in life.

Having no access to legal assistance, she was not even aware of meaning of the asylum procedures and the asylum interview. Her asylum claim was rejected.

When she reached our offices, and after conducting a 'needs and risk assessment', we started drafting a holistic plan, to support her and her young girls. We guaranteed their access on basic rights that they were deprived from, due to the rejection of the asylum claim, while giving them the opportunity to take part in healing activities and receive psychological support. Day by day, they got more empowered.

At the same time, we started working on reopening her case on new grounds, by applying for the subsequent application. We gathered proof documents to strengthen her case, which indeed reopened!

After a few weeks, she underwent her asylum interview, for the second time. A positive answer was received. Her daughters are safe. Her sleepless nights are over. Today, she came by our offices to pay a visit. The bright smile on her face was our best reward. 💜

"Too old to ask for help, too young to be an adult. That's how I have felt my entire life."

When S. left Nigeria, he was only 15 years old.

The area where he grew up is controlled by a violent armed group that tried multiple times to recruit him. When he and his family tried to report the situation to the authorities, the police told them that he was already too old to be protected by the community.

One night, after repeated threats, the terrorist group set his house on fire, where both his father and younger sister lost their lives.

Being so young and alone, S. faced multiple harassment and violence along his way to Greece. Both in Egypt and in Turkey he was mistreated and forced to work in very dangerous and exploitative conditions.

In Lesvos, during the first meeting with our team, we outlined a vulnerability and needs assessment in the context of our legal programme, noticing how outwardly shy and timid he was.

Our next step was to guarantee his fair access to the asylum procedures. In order to achieve that, we first had to ensure he had access to psychological support. Through our referral pathway, a specialised psychologist undertook his case. By creating a safe environment, S. was finally strong enough to share his story with us.

We supported him with his asylum interview, and submitted a legal report to strengthen his asylum claims. We are currently waiting for the result, ready to fight any possible obstacles that may appear.

Every day, numerous young boys on the move, just transitioning to adulthood, face dangers, such as exploitation, violence, and abuse. Sometimes, their needs are being overlooked. They are considered less vulnerable and are expected to be strong, no matter the circumstances.

It's our duty to stand by the side of the youth, defend their rights and make them feel safe and protected.

'Today, I woke up smiling, for the first time in months. Thank you. Can't wait to see familiar faces again!'

M. is a 17 year old boy from Bangladesh, whose brother is living legally in Italy. However, M. was not even aware that the family reunification procedure even exists. He received all his information from smugglers, that wished to exploit him, by making him believe illegal ways to leave Greece were his only option.

We immediately started the case management, in order to provide him with the most suitable support.

Family reunification cases are not always smooth and without obstacles. In this case, we received several rejections, that made us doubt we would receive a positive result. At the same time, the boy's psychological state was worsening by the day.

Persistence and constant follow up is the method we always use, when dealing with all our cases.

Legal report after legal report, we managed to turnaround the negative decision! At the same time, through our referral pathway, we ensured that the child was receiving the psychological support he needed.

Yesterday, M. finally received his tickets, with a big smile on his face! And for us, this is the best reward! Good luck, M. 💜

! We are excited to share that last week our CEO, Nantina Tsekeri, was elected the Vice President of the Child Friendly Justice European Network (CFJ-EN).

The CFJ-EN aims to federate organisations across Europe, influence policies and legislation and disseminate relevant information at EU and national level. It has already gathered key stakeholders, practitioners and academics and it envisions great expansion in the years to come.

We kicked off last Friday with a 360° View on Child Friendly Justice Annual Seminar where key stakeholders came together to exchange on how to make sure that justice starts with and for children. 👤👤👤

One of our key takeaways is that child friendly justice doesn't start or end in the court rooms but way before and after that.

Follow us on this journey and visit the @cfjen website for more information.

The flowers represent the joyful moments, the rocks the painful and traumatic ones, while the candles the loss of a person.

The Narrative Expressive therapy of P. just started, together with our psychologist.

Through this type of therapy, unique and very innovative in Greece, we aim to empower her to become the narrator of her own story and release her pain.

Today she created this line, representing all the events that had an impact on her life.

She is a single mother victim of trafficking. She has also experienced torture, both in her country of origin and during her trip to Greece. This deep trauma has also affected her children, who were forced to mature early and struggle to enjoy the carefree childhood they are entitled to.

Although the therapy has just began, we can already see the first positive results: she is regaining hope, strength and motivation to fight her traumas.

This is the goal of the Healing Me Project, through innovative therapy methods to release the traumatic experiences from people's body and souls, and to increase their sense of value, safety and belonging.

By healing me, I heal you
 By healing me, I heal the world
 By healing me, I heal the justice system

Today, 11th of October, is the International Day of the Girl Child, a day to speak out for girls' rights.

Yet, girls around the world keep facing several challenges to their right to education, their physical and mental wellness and their right to live a life without violence.

Because girls are particularly vulnerable, they need additional protection. The Convention on the Rights of the Child, adopted by the United Nations General Assembly in 1989, spells out some human rights violations that are unique to the girl child, including discrimination based upon sex, prenatal sex selection, female genital mutilation and early marriage.

Available indicators reveal that girls are discriminated against from the earliest stages of life in the areas of nutrition, health care, education, family care and protection.

This vulnerability increases when it comes to girl children on the move, who are much more exposed to violence and lack of basic necessities.

We speak out against any form of discrimination and works for the enforcement of girl child rights, in order to ensure the development of their potential.

It is our duty, as human rights defenders, to foster protection of the most vulnerable ones.

'Growing up I used to think that going to the psychologist was something for broken people, a taboo. Now my family and I, including my children, have regular sessions with the psychologist. We are strong and it made us stronger!'

In honor of World Mental Health Day, we would like to share an empowering story of a family to whom we are providing support with our legal programme on Lesbos.

This family of 4, with two underage children, walked along the journey from Afghanistan to Greece facing numerous difficulties and dangers.

Along the way, both parents and children experienced violence, causing psychological trauma to all of them.

During their first meeting with our team, after creating a safe place of confidentiality, we ran a risk and needs assessment, from which emerged the suffering that marked them, and the strong need to regain their strength. We immediately referred the family to psychology experts, both for adults and minors, able to help them overcome such difficulties.

Apart from the legal intervention, the programme also acknowledges the importance of an effective and immediate referral pathway among the competent actors in the field to ensure that the rights and needs of each individual are respected and fulfilled.

📌 Last-minutes updates from Lesbos:

Last night, 5 October, a boat carrying 40 people capsized outside Patelidi, Thermi, Lesbos north east.

This morning the organizations active in the field learned that, up until now, 17 people were found dead, 10 were rescued, while at least 13 are still missing.

So far, we are aware that the majority of the asylum seekers involved in this terrible incident are women and girls of African region.

Our legal program restate it's availability in supporting the new arrivals throughout all the asylum process, while also advocating for the terrible events that are silently happening on the island of Lesbos.

By healing me, I heal the world 🌍

On Sunday, our ~ Healing Me ~ Project met the African community. We offered a space to single mothers and their children to feel safe and release worries.

In separate spaces, both the women and the children had the chance to do some breathing exercises, yoga, sound therapy and mindfulness activities.

In addition to the exercises, we also offered our little participants the opportunity to socialise, create through art and play 🎨

At the end, a big dinner table was set up with handmade greek and african food served with an extra sauce of love 🍷

The ~Healing me~ project aims to offer a safe refuge to people's souls, increase their sense of value, safety and belonging and release their traumatic experiences from their body and spirit 🙏

Our project is mobile, it will keep getting its suitcase, visiting more and more beneficiaries.

Don't hesitate to contact us if you wish to organise a session together!

Today is the 'Day of Remembrance and Reception', to remember all the victims who died in the attempt to reach Europe.

The 3rd October of 2013, 368 people died in a shipwreck next to the Italian coast. Institutions lined up to commemorate the tragedy and committed to prevent the deaths at the European borders.

'Never again', they said.

9 years later, nothing changed. The Mediterranean route is still the most dangerous and deadly one.

According to the UNHCR, from 2014 to today, 25.625 children, women and men died or are missing.

Today is a day of sorrow to remember all the people who died because of inhumane political choices. Europe is protecting its borders instead of protecting people.

We will continue to advocate and fight for protecting people's right to live and to have safe access to a fair asylum procedure.

'I went through a living hell by the Iranian authorities for not wearing the hijab correctly. I don't want this to happen to my daughter as well. I would rather die than let her go through this.'

Following the recent news and protests on the murder of Mahsa Amini, 19-years-old, by the hands of the hijab police in Iran, some of the Iranian beneficiaries of our legal program running in Lesbos spoke up about the situation in their country, by sharing their personal stories and point of view on the matter.

Back in 2017, M. family were living in Iran. One day, during a walk, they got stopped by some men with their faces covered. These men started threatening them, and injured both the wife and husband, on the ground that she was not wearing correctly the hijab, being her originally from Tajikistan.

After this unfortunate event, they kept receiving death threats and calls to court, so they decided to flee Iran to find a safer place to raise their 5 year old daughter.

During their asylum interview, they explained the whole situation, but their claim was rejected. When our legal team reached them, we assisted in reopening their case to restate the severity of what led them leave their country.

Based on the recent events, we believe - and hope - that all Governments are progressively taking note of the urgent situation in Iran.

Our legal intervention will keep supporting and remaining by the side of the silent ones, providing updated legal information, ensuring a fair access to the asylum procedures.

On the 16th of September, an Iranian woman from Kurdistan, Mahsa Amini, was detained and killed by the morality police in Tehran. The police did not give any explanation other than that it was 'due to hijab rule'. This hijab rule mandates covered hair and loosefitting robes for women. Morality police in Iran enforce rules arbitrarily, using verbal notices, monetary fines or even detaining women in a violent way, like the case of Mahsa Amini.

This hijab rule entered into force after the Islamic Revolution in 1981, and since then, many women have challenged it appearing in public without the mandatory scarf and robe. The killing of Mahsa Amini has provoked a widespread outrage in Iranian population, who are protesting and demanding the end of women detention for not observing the hijab rule.

It is our labour, as humanitarians, to stand with Iranian women and speak out for gender equality and women freedom worldwide. 🙏

The Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women, along with other international treaties, recognize this gender equality.

Respecting the women freedom to wear like they want is respecting basic human rights.

This practice constitutes structural violence and must come to an end, in order to ensure equality and women's rights. We urge the Iranian government to end this harassment against women and, finally, make justice!

For more information on the matter, check the New York Times article: <https://www.nytimes.com/.../iran-death-woman-protests.html>

We will also keep you updated regarding any developments.

🌱 By Healing me, I Heal the World

Our healing me project meets children from Ukraine.

Our goal is to empower children and youth, who just escaped the armed conflict, aiming to release the traumatic experiences from their body and spirit, to offer them the tools to relax their mind and bring ease into their daily life and to increase their sense of value, safety and belonging.

The healing me suitcase travels and find children and their families, community members and professionals where they are. So far we have reached out to all refugee communities and offering a space for healing to unaccompanied minors on the move, single mothers and their children survivors of trafficking, families and young adults transitioning to adulthood alone.

Contact us if you wish to organise a session at your center!

Today is the international Day of Peace 🕊️

However, more than 250 million of children live in conflict affected nations.

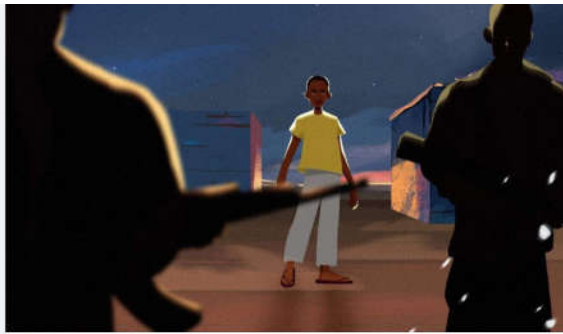

With the increase of conflicts nationally and across borders in many parts of the world, it's important to reaffirm our commitment to promote peace, respect human rights and protect those affected.

War always costs innocent civilian lives and it's one of the main reason millions of people are forced to flee their country of origin.

We will continue supporting and offering protection services to those fleeing armed conflict, to ensure the safety and dignity that every person deserves.

'I am ready to create the best life for me! I am strong, and will become stronger! I will make it happen!'

S. is a 19 year old girl from Guinea, currently transitioning to adulthood.

She arrived alone on Lesbos at the end of December 2021, after witnessing and suffering numerous brutalities in her country.

In the context of our legal programme, we supported her from the very first day of her asylum application. After drafting an individually tailored plan to support her and undertaking her whole case management, she received the refugee status!

At the same time, by linking her with other actors on the island, she managed to receive psychological help, which was one of her main requests.

S. is finally smiling, after years of uncertainty and danger. Her healing journey has begun.

She also came into possession of her identity documents from the Greek State, as well as her passport. She is making plans to study, work and travel the world!

★ S. received our services in the context of the legal programme we are running with the support and in collaboration with Flüchtlingshilfe Doru Blancke, in Lesbos.

Happy new school year! 🎒

Today, the first bell of the school year rang. 📚

Children from all across Greece packed their bags and started their new adventure, to learn new things and make new friends.

All children have the right to access education, according to article 28 of the CRC Convention.

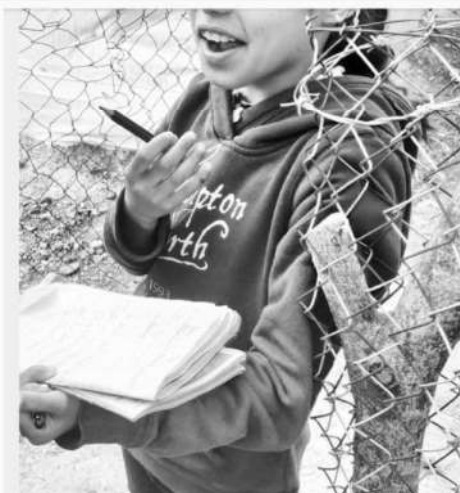

However, there are still hundreds of refugee children in Greece that do not attend school.

Unregistered unaccompanied children, struggling for survival, or unregistered children with their families, as well as the ones trapped in closed camps, will have to be deprived, once again, of their right to education.

It is crucial that we keep fighting for the rights of all children, until every last one of them can regain their childhood and enjoy their fundamental rights.

'I suffered a lot along the way. It was not easy, but I stayed strong. Now, I am finally calm and hopeful. Everything will go well.'

Precious, a young mother of three from Cameroon, is one of the beneficiaries of our legal programme in Lesbos. Back in her country, she suffered extreme State violence. She was also unlawfully separated by her children and forced to leave.

Once she reached Turkey, she discovered that the person that offered to help her leave Cameroon, had sold her to other people. She was sexually exploited for months, forced to have sex with men every day, until she managed to escape and reach Greece.

After intense legal actions, she was recognized as victim of human trafficking. By undertaking her whole case management, she managed to also receive the refugee status. Precious is finally enjoying the protection she deserves. She is also receiving psychological support, through our referral pathway.

However, our work is not over. Precious wants to be reunited with her children, left back in her country of origin. Although such a process is particularly complex and lengthy, we managed to reach out and create a link with the competent authorities in Greece, as well as abroad, hoping to see mother and children together in the future.

The evacuation of #Eleonas, one of the last refugee camps in Athens, started mid-August. The authorities wish to completely evict the camp by the end of the year.

#Eleonas is situated near central Athens and the residents can leave the facility as they wish (unlike in other camps), allowing them to have a better access to essential services and a more integrated life.

Most of the residents protested against the eviction, while the police attempted to impede the demonstrations, by pushing them back, using tear gas and flash grenades.

The residents face the possibility of being transferred to closed camps in remote areas. This equals to de facto detention, since restriction of movement will be forced upon them. Children risk losing their access to school and basic healthcare.

Eleonas camp residents do not wish to become prisoners. Protesting is their only weapon to fight the injustice.

Stay tuned on more updates on the situation!

According to the data provided by all the actors operating on the island of Lesbos, 219 new arrivals were registered in the Reception and Identification Centers (RICs) in Kara Tepe Camp in the month of August. Among them, the majority come from Afghanistan, Sudan, Palestine, Somalia, and Eritrea.

As a part of our legal programme in Lesbos, we were there to support, once again, the families, single parents, young adults, and minors that reached the island. From their arrival, we worked actively in the field, preparing them for their interviews, legally representing them during their asylum claims, preparing and submitting legal memos to support each case undertaken. Quality legal aid is crucial in ensuring their fair access to the asylum procedures.

Carrying out our holistic approach, we also activated our cooperation network with the different organizations operating on Lesbos, in order to guarantee an all-round assistance for our beneficiaries, such as medical and psychological support.

Stay tuned for more updates!

Our week started on a very positive note 🌟

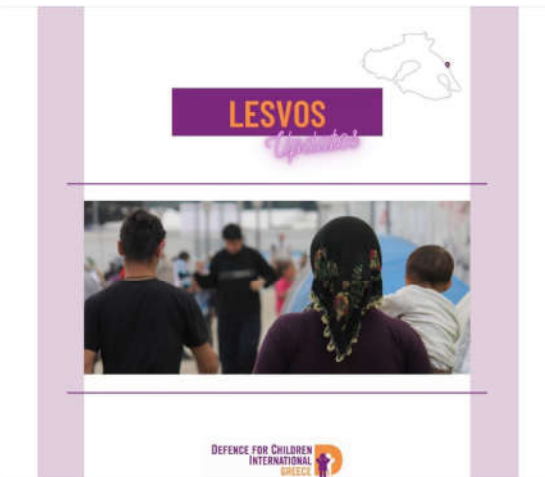

Two of the Afghan families that received legal support, as part of our legal programme in Lesvos, were finally handed a positive decision on their admissibility interview! This development means they don't have to fear deportation back to Turkey anymore, a country that is constantly violating the human rights of refugees.

We will keep supporting the two families throughout the asylum process to make sure that their stories are being heard and accepted as eligible of international protection due to the dangers they were facing in their home country.

Everyday in Lesvos, numerous asylum seekers, mostly from Afghanistan and Somalia, receive rejections to their Admissibility Interviews, solely based on their experiences in Turkey, without having a chance to explain the reasons why they had to leave their country of origin and receive the protection they are entitled to.

The news of these recent successes shows the importance of how a good and organized legal representation can help to overcome such unlawful procedures.

For this reason, DCI Greece, in collaboration and with the support of Flüchtlingshilfe Doro Blancke, will keep operating on such context to make sure that the rights of each individual are valued through our concrete legal actions.

Today, is a very happy day, for all of us! 😊
Yet another unaccompanied child, finally received his tickets, to join his brother in Sweden! 16 year old M. will soon be in a loving and familiar environment, leaving behind the bad memories from his experience in Greece.
However, this was not a smooth or easy procedure.
Unfortunately, in a big number of family reunification cases, multiple rejections are received, frequently even on unlawful grounds. Especially in these cases, the children's psychological state gets shattered, as they get convinced they will never leave the precarious conditions they are facing on an everyday basis. On top of that, they are unable to understand the complex legal procedures surrounding their cases.
For all these reasons, an extremely careful approach is required, to empower the child, while working on ways to fight the rejections. It's a hard work, but the smile on their faces always makes it worth it!

According to article 31 of the Convention on the Rights of the Child, every child has the right to leisure and to engage in play.
While mommy is receiving proper legal support, in order to ensure their fair access to all asylum procedures and social rights, little S. has the opportunity to play and express herself, in our safe space.
Our goal has always been to devote equal space for the inclusion of a child centered analysis of why the child as a separate and unique human rights holder is in need of protection, regardless of the state of the parent.
Let's hope that, one day, all children like S. will have the chance to be carefree, play and finally be children.

"We left Kabul to guarantee our freedom and a safe future for our children. Once in Greece, we asked for asylum but our interview was about Turkey. Few days ago, our application was rejected. They are telling us now to go back to Turkey. But while we were in Turkey, we also received a deportation letter. They are treating us like a ping - pong ball "Afghan family of 5

Afghanistan, Somalia, Syria, Bangladesh, and Pakistan. Those are the 5 nationalities that have to undergo an Admissibility interview before the Asylum one. If the latter focuses on the condition of the individuals back in their country of origin, the Admissibility one focuses on their experiences in Turkey, reducing their chances to benefit from International Protection from the Greek State.

This additional interview provokes a lot of confusion and distress to people on the move who, most of the time, do not know why they have to answer questions about Turkey.

Countless refugees fleeing war and persecution face unlawful procedures that without proper legal aid and representation is almost impossible to overcome.

For this reason, DCI Greece in collaboration and with the support of Flüchtlingshilfe Doro Blancke runs the legal program in Lesbos so as to provide concrete legal assistance to families, single parents, and young adults with their asylum applications.

Our best reward is the smile of our beneficiaries' faces, when they leave our office, confident that, from now on, they will not be alone.

Little L's main request is to finally be able to go to school, learn Greek and make new friends. All children have the right to access education, according to article 28 of the CRC Convention. However, there are still hundreds of refugee children in Greece that do not attend school.

L. and her mother will receive legal aid, as well as protection services, to ensure their fair access to asylum procedures, social rights, safety and well being.

Hopefully, when the first school bell rings, L. will be right there. 🏫

Recap: DCI and DCI-Greece co-host side event to the 50th session of the UN Human Rights Council

Institutional violence against children on the move: an emerging need to apply child-friendly procedures and integrated protection policies

30/06/2022- 13:00 CEST

On 30 June 2022, in Geneva, Switzerland, DCI's International Secretariat and DCI-Greece co-hosted a side event to the 50th UN Human Rights Council. The event, titled institutional violence against children on the move: an emerging need to apply child-friendly procedures and integrated protection policies, was a rousing success. In total, the event saw over sixty attendees (combined online and in-person). Among the panelists were child rights experts, a child mental health expert, DCI advocates, and a young refugee. This unique mix of perspectives fostered a dynamic, well-rounded discussion and approached the issue of institutional violence against children on the move from multiple angles.

The panel discussion was moderated by DCI's Executive Director, Alex Kamanotos. The speakers included H. E. Ambassador Marc Bichler (Permanent Representative of Luxembourg to the United Nations Office at Geneva), Najat Maalla Mjid (UN Special Representative of the Secretary-General on Violence against Children), Felipe Gonzalez Morales (UN Special Rapporteur on the human rights of migrants), Rhama (a young refugee from Afghanistan), Claire Pawlak (an expert from the special secretariat for protection of unaccompanied minors in Greece), Nardina Tsakiri (CEO of DCI-Greece), Vassily Yuzhanin (Head of International Migration Law at ICM), Tizita Apege (Clinical psychologist and Associate Professor at The American College of Greece), and Philip Jaffe (member of the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child).

To view a complete recording of the event, click here. Keep reading to view highlights from the panel event.

Opening and closing remarks were delivered by Luxembourg Ambassador Marc Bichler. H. E. Amb. Bichler pointed out that children on the move have a right to international protection as they face threats to their rights (trafficking, violence, etc). There is a collective responsibility to ensure that frontline states can protect these children. Child-friendly procedures need to be respected and properly implemented to act in the best interest of children. Finally, he welcomed UN mechanisms and civil society to understand how they can improve their child protection systems.

Dr. Najat Maalla Mjid delivered the keynote address. In this, she noted the urgency for investing in the protection and well-being of children on the move, too many children are still left behind because of conflicts, natural disasters, and food insecurity. These children are most likely to be victims of child trafficking, child labour, criminal and extremist groups. In many countries, children are still deprived of liberty. There is a need for long-term policies minimizing risks, enhancing capacities of children, and empowering them to feel safe, helping them to gain new skills such as technological skills. The stakeholders should establish an investing emergency child alert system and hotline to ensure effective protection.

Historic decision!

The European Court of Human Rights ruled that Greece violated the European Convention of Human Rights over the sinking of a migrant boat in 2014 in which 11 asylum seekers, among them eight children, lost their lives. (Safi and Others v. Greece)

Among other violations, the Court concluded that the Greek authorities had not carried out a thorough investigation into why the boat had sunk. This took into account the complaint that there were serious flaws with interpretation when statements were made.

The Court also stated that there had been a violation of Article 3 (prohibition of inhuman or degrading treatment), as 12 of the applicants were forced to undergo a strip-search in front of the other survivors and a group of soldiers.

A legal summary of this case is available in the Court's database <https://hudoc.echr.coe.int/eng/?i=002-13740>

Press Release
Issued by the Registrar of the Court

ECHR 235 (2022)
07.07.2022

EUROPEAN COURT OF HUMAN RIGHTS
ΕΥΡΩΠΑΪΚΟ ΔΙΚΑΣΤΗΡΙΟ ΔΙΚΑΙΩΜΑΤΩΝ ΑΝΘΡΩΠΙΝΩΝ

Violations of the Convention in a case concerning the sinking of a migrant boat

The case of Safi and Others v. Greece (application no. 54187/15) concerned the sinking on 20 January 2014 of a fishing boat transporting 27 foreign nationals in the Aegean Sea, off the island of Farmakoussi, resulting in the death of 11 people, including relatives of the applicants.

In today's Chamber judgment¹ in this case the European Court of Human Rights held, unanimously, that there had been:

- a violation of Article 2 (right to life) of the European Convention on Human Rights under its procedural head. The Court found that there had been shortcomings in the proceedings and concluded that the national authorities had not carried out a thorough and effective investigation capable of shedding light on the circumstances in which the boat had sunk;
- a violation of Article 2 (right to life) on account of the failure to comply with the positive obligation under this Article. The Court found that the Greek authorities had not done all that could reasonably be expected of them to provide the applicants and their relatives with the level of protection required by Article 2 of the Convention;
- a violation of Article 3 (prohibition of inhuman or degrading treatment), concerning 12 of the applicants who had been on board the boat and who, after it had sunk, had been subjected to degrading treatment on account of the body searches they had undergone on arrival in Farmakoussi.

A legal summary of this case will be available in the Court's database HUDOC [\[link\]](https://hudoc.echr.coe.int/eng/?i=002-13740).

Principal facts

The application was lodged by a group of 16 applicants, made up of 13 Afghan nationals, two Syrian nationals and a Palestinian national. It concerned the sinking on 20 January 2014 of a fishing boat transporting 27 foreign nationals in the Aegean Sea, off the island of Farmakoussi. The applicants were on board the boat, the sinking of which resulted in the death of 11 people, including relatives of the applicants.

According to the applicants, the coastguard vessel was travelling at very high speed in order to push the refugees back towards Turkish waters, and this caused the fishing boat to capsize.

According to the national authorities, the boat was being towed towards the island of Farmakoussi in order to rescue the refugees, and it capsized because of pans and raiboon movements among those on board.

Complaints, procedure and composition of the Court

Relying on Article 2 (right to life) of the Convention, the applicants submitted that, on account of the actions and/or omissions of the coastguards, their lives had been put in danger when the boat had sunk. Some of the applicants also complained about the death of their relatives on that occasion.

1. Under Article 42 and 44 of the Convention, this Chamber judgment is not final. During the three-month period following its delivery, the applicants may request that the case be referred to the Grand Chamber of the Court. If such a request is made, a vote of the judges determines whether the case deserves further examination. In that event, the Grand Chamber will hear the case and deliver a final judgment. If the national court or other authority has already taken the Chamber judgment into account, the Grand Chamber will not hear the case. Once a judgment becomes final, it is authoritative in the Committee of Ministers of the Council of Europe for purposes of its execution. Further information about the execution process can be found here: <https://www.echr.coe.int/eng/press-releases/press-releases.aspx>.

DCI Greece has traditionally been by the side of all refugees, regardless of their country of origin. When the Ukrainian crisis started, our team was, once again, ready to support the ones who needed us the most.

Among with legal aid and protection services, we have been providing healing activities to Ukrainian children, that just escaped the armed conflict. Today, as we do every Friday, we were there. Together with them, we heal, become stronger and more resilient. The smile on their faces, every time a session ends, is the best reward. See you next Friday, little ones!

These activities are part of the 'healing me' project. This project fits in a suitcase and is mobile. In one week, it will visit the African community in Athens, to support and empower single mothers and their children. Stay tuned!💜

📌 Few words about the Workshop:

Children might experience serious forms of institutional violence in their effort to navigate through the asylum system in Greece, while at the same time they are lacking the opportunity to seek remedy into a restorative justice context.

? Where do we stand as professionals? Can we recognise in our daily work the forms it can take?

Can we actually contribute to mitigating institutional violence and what are the ways through? How can we support each other and our beneficiaries in front of institutional violence?

Through activities, discussion and exchange of good practices, we will try together to give answers to these questions. 🤝

Only by familiarising ourselves with the concept of institutional violence, we can explore and work on the ways of combating it.

!! At the end of the workshop, material will be shared with the participants that they can use in their daily work.

Day by day in our work, we have witnessed the resilience, the courage, and the hope of a better life in the eyes of our beneficiaries. They arrive in Europe, overcoming endless challenges and hardships, and many still strive to live a normal life!

On #WorldRefugeeDay, we celebrate the strength of people who have been forced to flee their home country to escape conflict or persecution. However, an important message needs to be shared all over the world: #SeekingSafetyIsAHumanRight!

Every person on this planet has a right to seek safety – whoever they are, wherever they come from and whenever they are forced to flee.

It is our duty to keep fighting, until we ensure all warriors of life are treated with dignity and all their fundamental rights are being respected!

This week ended on a very positive note 💜

A 12 year old unaccompanied boy from Syria, will soon be travelling to another European county, to join his uncle, since his family reunification application was finally accepted! 🙌

It was yet another particularly complex and challenging case, that required carefully planned responses from all of us in Themida Greece team.

Despite the obstacles and rejections, we kept trying. The positive outcome, which we are extremely grateful for, proves, once again, the importance of persistence and constant follow up.

New mothers and newborn babies in the camp of Lesbos are facing a nutrition crisis. The poor facilities in the camp are not able to provide enough care and support to the new mothers for breastfeeding, which is the best way to provide safe food, water, and protection against infections. At the same time, bottle-feed is challenging in the camp as infant formula is not always available.

Even when the infants grow, their health will, once again, be at risk, since there is little healthy food available at the camp to replace breast milk. Instead of cow milk or vegetables, all the one-year-olds receive cookies, sweetened orange juice, bread and noodles.

DCI Greece urges the authorities to support pregnant and breastfeeding women as it is central to the well-being of their children. Children have the right to be free from hunger and receive adequate and quality food that will help them develop.

Unfortunately, this new crisis is an addition to a long list of the rights violations experienced by migrants in Lesbos and other camps, all across the Greek territory.

Since May 6, until two days ago, asylum seekers in the camp of Samos had been living without running water, because of the breakage of a water pump. They had been receiving 4.5 liters of water per person per day, for over two weeks. Moreover, access to water was limited to one hour in the morning and one in the evening, and was intended to cover all their water needs, from washing to drinking.

Upon its opening in September 2021, the Samos camp was presented as an exemplary model, characterised as 'the future of migration'. However, organizations working in the camp and refugees residing in it are reporting that this fault is just one in a long list of problems occurring in the camp since its opening.

In addition to the poor living conditions, access to legal assistance is inadequate and residents are not able to seek information or legal support, regarding the asylum procedures.

DCI Greece expresses its deepest concerns on the living conditions of migrants at the Samos camp, which were already alarming. This recent water shortage along with the Greek government's slow response is an addition to a long list of the rights violations experienced by migrants in Samos and other camps, all across the Greek territory.

After the great success of DCI-Greece's workshop on 'Response to Institutional Violence as Professionals', that was conducted in Lesbos island in February and , upon your request, we are bringing it back!

You can also contact us on irispappa.dci@gmail.com

Few words about the Workshop:

Children might experience serious forms of institutional violence in their effort to navigate through the asylum system in Greece, while at the same time they are lacking the opportunity to seek remedy into a restorative justice context.

? Where do we stand as professionals? Can we recognise in our daily work the forms it can take?
 Can we actually contribute to mitigating institutional violence and what are the ways through? How we can support each other and our beneficiaries in front of institutional violence?

Through activities, discussion and exchange of good practices, we will try together to give answers to these questions. 🙌

Only by familiarising ourselves with the concept of institutional violence, we can explore and work on the ways of combating it.

!! At the end of the workshop, material will be shared with the participants that they can use in their daily work.

👩👩 Nantina Tsekeri (Director of DCI Greece) and Iris Pappa (Coordinator of Children's Rights Helpdesk -DCI Greece) will be the instructors.

'The world is a bystander to our pain, to an apartheid, to complete tyranny,' tweeted Shaharзад Akhbar, the former head of the Afghanistan Independent Human Rights Commission, now exiled abroad.

'So much pain and grief for women of my country, my heart is exploding. So much hatred and anger against Taliban, enemies of women, enforcers of gender apartheid, enemies of Afahanistan and humanity.'

Her message is referring to the Taliban's latest restriction on women's rights: Mandatory face covering law.

This lies on the bottom of a long restriction list, since their rise to power, last August. The Taliban ordered women in Afghanistan to cover up head to toe and only go outdoors in the company of a male, in a decree issued last Saturday by the Taliban's Ministry for the Propagation of Virtue and the Prevention of Vice – formerly known as “the Ministry of Women's Affairs.”

The decree also holds the male guardians of the women accountable, as noncompliance of a woman with the new dress code threatens them with imprisonment. This strengthens men's say in women's lives and choices, and puts them at an even higher risk of domestic abuse.

DCI Greece stands with the women in Afghanistan in the face of these attacks on their rights. Together with the international community, we urge the Taliban to uplift these restrictions and to implement equal rights for everyone in Afghanistan. Women have the right to choose their clothing, mobility, careers, and should enjoy the same rights as men.

Working with migrant mothers and children means accompanying some of the most vulnerable people in their painful experiences. Between the traumatic stories, the rejections, and the long bureaucratic waiting periods, this line of work can sometimes feel gloomy.

When little M. visited our office for the third time, he started running, to give us a hug. The smile on his face was telling us he feels safe and happy. The reason we keep going is this. Moments like this one that infuse our work with energetic bursts of innocence and joy.

We continue to work closely with children on the move and migrant mothers to make sure children get to feel cared for, loved, and protected. To put a smile this big on every child's face!

By providing holistic legal and psycho-social support at our Helpdesk center, and creating a safe space for our beneficiaries to express themselves, their thoughts and concerns, we hope to provide every child, even the most vulnerable ones, a chance at a better life.

May his force smash the institutional violence he has already encountered. 🙏

Being homeless and without proper social security services provided to him and his mother became a survivor of extreme violence since the age of three out in the streets of Athens.

👤 Now mother and son are receiving emergency protection response at our Child Protection Center.

And this is the reality encountered by thousands of single mothers and children currently seeking protection in Greece.

This makes a case of extreme institutional violence in the light of absence of an effective child protection system in Greece for all children.

We are currently putting all our efforts to make it a priority on the Government's agenda.

Stay tuned for more updates on the matter.

Today is a big day for Greece and the children living in this country. Greece is currently being examined by the UN Committee on the Rights of the Child for the situation of the children's rights on its territory. This happens every five years and unfortunately within this time frame many appalling stories of children experiencing unprecedented violence at all levels have surfaced. With most still remaining hidden. We have been actively participating in the entire process by submitting expert reports to the Committee and delivering key information. We are anticipating the results of the ongoing examination in order to explore how we could further assist the country to prioritise and respect children's rights in practice. Stay tuned. We will be sharing the topics discussed and updates. #dont_leave_the_kids_alone

Through our legal programme in Lesbos, working with the most vulnerable refugee populations, we have been experiencing first hand of all the great challenges and injustices they face. An indicative example is the one of M. family. The members of this family were human rights activists back in Afghanistan, providing support and advocating for abused women. After the return of the Taliban in power, they were forced to flee their country, because of persecution and constant threats of their lives. When they arrived in Turkey, the police officers at the borders beat all the family members severely, including their two very young children. The mother was also sexually molested. Following their abuse, they were deported back to Iran. After several attempts, they managed to reach Greece, where they were expecting to finally find safety. Instead, they were forced to overcome an additional bureaucratic obstacle, the admissibility interview, where they were called to explain the reasons why they would not be safe, if deported back to Turkey. Despite their dramatic experiences, institutional violence and abuse, and despite the fact that they were not even provided with the opportunity to ask for asylum in the neighbouring country, their application was rejected. They also received a decision to be deported back in Turkey immediately. We are currently supporting them with their appeal, where we hope the injustice will finally be reinstated. Alongside the legal support, they also receive specialised medical and psychological support, through our referral pathway. Unfortunately, the story of M. family, is not the only one. Countless refugees, fleeing war, torture and persecution, face inhumane and unlawful procedures that, without proper legal aid and support, is almost impossible to overcome. It is our responsibility to remain by their side. 🙌 Our legal programme in Lesbos runs in collaboration and with the support of Flüchtlingshilfe Doro Blancke.

This baby was born invisible.

His 19 year old mother, coming from Africa to claim asylum in Greece, was 8 months pregnant,unregistered and homeless. She faced unprecedented obstacles in her effort to find safety for her and her unborn child.

After our Helpdesk's intervention, the mother received all the necessary support in order to deliver her newborn in safety. However, that was not enough for them to become visible under the radar of the Greek state.

Fatima and little Daniel, until yesterday, were 'ghosts' in a city that didn't want to see them.

Today, we celebrate the fruits of our case management, that brought an asylum seeker card in their hands. Finding permanent housing and access to social rights is the next big obstacle to overcome.

It is crucial, in our days, to recall that not all asylum seekers are treated in the same way, especially the ones originating from 'low profile' refugee countries, such as African ones.

At the moment, in Greece, there are thousands of unregistered children, as young as Daniel, deprived of any sense of dignity and respect, under the justification that they are accompanied by a family member.

We will keep advocating, until all children receive the protection they deserve and remedy from the extreme institutional violence they face, just because they are not born as nationals of an EU country.

Earlier this morning, DCI Greece attended the event, organized by the Greek Ombudsman and UNICEF to present the research report on the "Consequences of COVID -19 restrictive measures to Children's Rights".

We hope the findings and results of the research will contribute in the creation of a more adaptable and effective protection system for all children, including the unregistered children on the move, who are 'invisible' in the eyes of the State and the official protection system. As a result,they are deprived of safety and the access on the most basic human rights, such as education and healthcare.

★ April started on a positive note! ★

During March alone, 6 beneficiaries of our legal programme in Lesbos island received a positive decision on their admissibility and asylum interviews! 🥳

A big number of refugees arrive every week on the island of Lesbos. They are placed under quarantine, where they receive no information about the upcoming procedures and no legal support.

Through our program, we manage not only to have immediate access to the new arrivals but to also guarantee their fair access to the asylum procedures by receiving quality legal support and representation before the authorities, while having access at the same time to their social rights.

Vulnerability assessments of their situation are being conducted, in order to determine their needs and to provide our services accordingly, in an attempt to fill the existing gap in the state mechanism. Referrals for health and psychological support are also being made, to ensure the holistic support of our beneficiaries.

💜 And this is all possible with the (financial and not only) support of FUGHTINGSHITE DORO BIANCKE, that have been staying nighny committed to support the most vulnerable populations, so they can finally receive the protection, safety and dignity they deserve.

"We are human. We have rights. Why are they playing with our future? We only want to continue our studies. Is it a crime to be a girl? Is it a crime we want to study?"

📖 On 23 March, the Taliban announced that girls would not be allowed to attend secondary school, despite their previous assurances. This denial of education violates the human rights of women and girls and leaves them more exposed to violence, poverty and exploitation.

🏠 Afghan secondary school girls have now been out of education for more than seven months since the Taliban returned to power.

DCI stands with Afghan girls and supports their human rights.

Our Helpdesk is currently supporting a big number of Afghan families with girls with their asylum claim in Greece. In case of deportation back in Afghanistan, these girls will be deprived of their right to education, which amounts to persecution.

Children have the right to education, regardless of their sex. This right is stated in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights (UDHR) and the Convention on the Right of the Child.

Together with the international community, we urge the Taliban to keep their promise of continuing girls' education.

Girls' rights to school should never be neglected!

Greece was recently under Universal Periodic Review (UPR). Here you can find our Observations, as well as the official Statement of DCI Global Movement, before the 49th Session of UN Human Rights Council.

DEFENCE FOR CHILDREN INTERNATIONAL

Universal Periodic Review (UPR) - Greece

Our Observations & The official Statement, before the 49th session of the UN Human Rights Council

Our observations

Greece was recently under Universal Periodic Review (UPR).

Following its third Universal Periodic Review, Greece was issued with a total of 239 recommendations. The government accepted 216, partially-accepted three more, and took note of the remaining 20. It provided clarifications on its approach, stating that 100 in total accepted those on which measures have already been or are currently being implemented or where measures are envisaged to be taken before its next voluntary mid-term report or its next UPR in 2025.

We provide a delineation of these recommendations and the implications of Greece's response below.

Among the various themes addressed by 239 recommendations which Greece received, were the ratification of human rights treaties, children's rights, migrants rights, and humanitarian work.

Children's rights

The government of Greece has accepted all recommendations addressing directly or indirectly children's rights, with the exception of recommendation 130.3 and 130.4, which advised the ratification of the additional protocols of the CRC, and the Convention against Discrimination in Education. Greece did not accept recommendation 130.3, and explained that "at this stage, Greece is not in a position to take steps towards the ratification of the Optional Protocols to [...] the CRC." Greece did not provide justification on recommendation 130.4.

The recommendations generally called for the reinforcement of children's rights by ensuring access and integration of minority, migrant children, and children with disabilities into the Greek education system; securing and improving access to health care to all children, including children on the move; providing the necessary financial and personnel resources to guarantee the implementation of protection measures that can prevent violations of children's rights; and undertaking measures and reinforce existing ones to reduce child vulnerability.

'Despite the difficulties, I manage to smile. My girls are finally safe from Female Genital Mutilation. What more could I ask for?'

These are the words of H., a single mother from Somalia, victim of double FGM. She came in Greece with her 2 little daughters, so she can prevent the same thing happening to them.

She has finally received international protection from Greece, after being supported by our legal programme in Lesbos.

However, this was not a straightforward process. H. had to undergo an additional, bureaucratic obstacle, the admissibility interview. Refugees from 5 countries (Syria, Afghanistan, Somalia, Bangladesh, and Pakistan) are obliged to undergo this additional step, so as not to be deported back to Turkey and have the right to give an asylum interview in Greece.

Through our legal programme in Lesbos, we have managed to provide immediate access to legal information and representation to all our beneficiaries, from day one, from the moment they come out of quarantine.

A big number of them are women from Somalia, victims of FGM, and their children, just like H.

👉 90% of them have received positive admissibility decisions and are safe from deportation in Turkey

👉 90% of them have also received international protection

Our legal programme in Lesbos will keep supporting our beneficiaries, so they can finally receive the protection, dignity and safety they deserve.

A big thank you to Flüchtlingshilfe Doro Blancke for the support (financial and not only) so we can be by the side of the most vulnerable and deliver our services

On the international Day for the Elimination of Racial Discrimination, we join the international community in calling for a world free from racism.

We applaud the efforts of the state institutions and civil society groups that welcomed Ukrainian refugees fleeing the Russian invasion of Ukraine with open arms. Therefore, we do urge the immediate extension of these efforts to include those fleeing similar war and destruction in other countries, as well as the non Ukrainian population, trying to flee Ukraine.

Today, we say that all these abhorrent scenes of racism must end.

Everyone has the right to life, safety, dignity and equality.

Every act of Racial Discrimination is one too many.

Children in Ukraine are bearing the consequences of the war; too many have fallen as casualties or gotten injured, but the risk does not stop there. The war continues to expose more of them at risk of violence, trafficking, sexual abuse and exploitation, and disappearance.

As they flee from conflict, they risk getting separated from their families and being exposed to considerable harm.

If you would like to report a missing child, or are a missing child yourself, here are contact points who can help you.

!! Emergency child protection response checklist to first-line professionals !!

The Ukrainian refugee crisis is escalating. The number of children fleeing their country to reach safety, increases everyday, with more than 1.000.000 Ukrainian children being on the move, since the armed conflict started. (Source: Unicef)

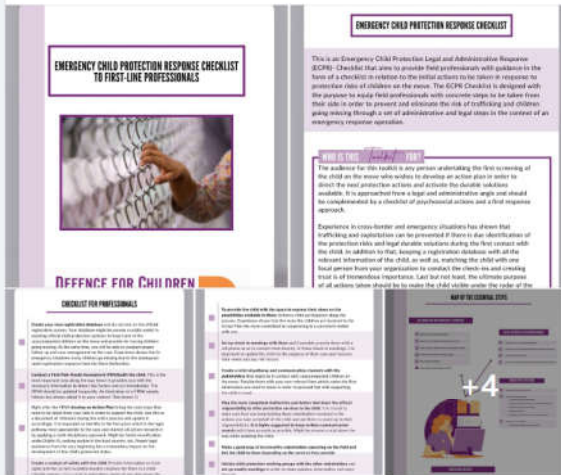

This is an emergency response toolkit that reflects on DCI-GR's experience in the management of refugee flows from 2015, until today. It aims to provide field professionals with guidance in the form of a checklist the initial actions to be taken in response to protection risks of children on the move.

We have already received many requests from professionals and organisations, working in the borders of Ukraine's neighbouring countries, dealing with this emergency situation.

We hope this toolkit can be of use.

Feel free to disseminate!

How can you help Ukrainian victims of the armed conflict? 🇺🇦

Στη σκιά της ουκρανικής κρίσης, το DCI-GR λαμβάνει άμεση δράση! Στο πλαίσιο των δράσεων επείγουσας απάντησης στις αναγκές που προκύπτουν, διοργανώνουμε έρανο, σε συνεργασία με την Ukrainian Women in Greece / Українки в Греції και Melissa Network. Υπάρχει μεγάλη ανάγκη για σκόνη γάλακτος (βρεφική). Όπως μας ενημέρωσαν, σε συνάντηση που είχαμε χθες, υπάρχει ελάχιστη διαθεσιμότητα σκόνης γάλακτος στην Ουκρανία και στα σύνορα. Σας καλούμε να συνεισφέρετε, ώστε να προωθηθούν σε οσες και όσους έχουν ανάγκη.

📩 Για περισσότερες πληροφορίες, Παρακαλούμε επικοινωνήστε μαζί μας με προσωπικό μήνυμα.

Due to the armed conflict in Ukraine, DCI-GR is running an emergency response plan, so we can provide our help in different ways.

One of these actions, is to start gathering, in collaboration with Ukrainian Women in Greece / Українки в Греції and Melissa Network powdered milk (for babies), so can support those in need. In the coordination meeting we had yesterday, they highlighted the limited supplies of powdered milk in Ukraine and the borders.

For this reason, we are calling you to be a helping hand!

📩 For more info, please send us a personal message.

Some children keep reaching European soil with their dead bodies. The pictures of the corpses of two refugee children at the shore of Lesbos scream out the profound discrimination in the management of the welcoming of refugees and the creation of '2nd category' of refugees identified by skin colour and country of origin. We are deeply concerned of the deterrence policies applied to some nationals of third country.

Expression of solidarity and rule of law in Europe is still tested hard..

Reception policies and legal pathways for reaching safety need to be one and only one for all people regardless ethnicity and skin color. Prohibition of discrimination is a cross cutting principle in the UN Convention on the Rights of the Child and binding on all EU States.

#dont_leave_the_kids_alone

Stay tuned for more advocacy material on the issue.

I have read in the New York Times the other day that those who protect refugees are being prosecuted. Would you comment on that please?

Today, we all woke up to the devastating news that Ukraine is under attack.

We stand in solidarity with the Ukrainian people and wish these dark times will end soon and peace will return to the country. 🙏

War always costs innocent civilian lives and is the main reason millions of people are forced to flee their country of origin. Children, families and individuals experience the pain of leaving their homes, to start the long journey to safety.

Most of them, unfortunately, will experience even more difficulties as refugees in other countries. It is our duty to stand by their side, help them ensure their rights, find safety and heal.

Some serious art work in progress is happening today at our Center 🎨
 While mummy is receiving proper legal support with their claim to refugee protection.

One of the most important aspects when legally representing children accompanied by their parent(s) is to devote equal space for the inclusion of a child centered analysis of why the child as a separate and unique human rights holder is in need of this refugee protection regardless of the state of the parent.

Also, when the parent faces particular vulnerabilities how this impacts on the specific child's life and well being.

Till all is figured out little M. here is drawing a better world for her where the right to play will not seem as a luxury 🌈👏

'I had never been able to say those things out loud. Thank you, I finally feel safe and relieved.'

This is the message we just received from A. She is an 18year old single mother, victim of trafficking, currently transitioning to adulthood.

She left her country with the promise to reach Europe and work. However, when she reached Haiti, she was locked in an apartment and was forced to have sex with multiple men every day.

In our case management protocol, a very gentle and cautious approach is required, when dealing with victims of trafficking. Trust takes time, especially in these cases.

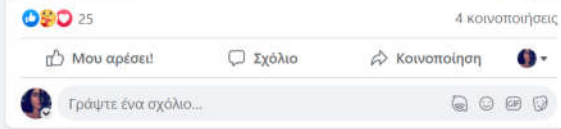

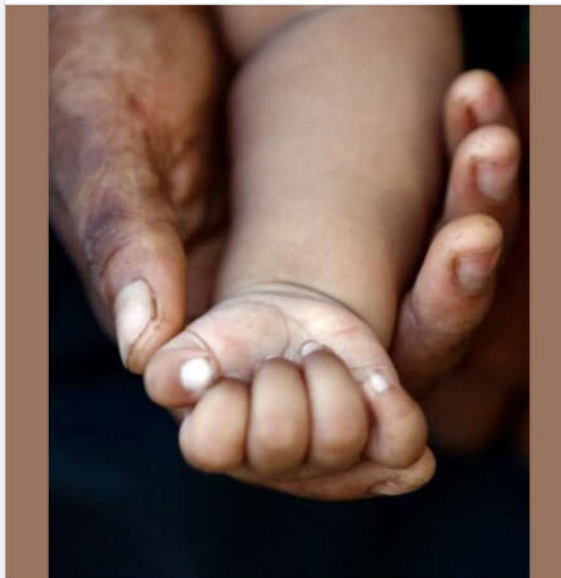

Through multiple sessions, our goal is always to create a safe space, where our beneficiaries can feel protected and empowered, while receiving the proper legal aid to ensure their rights.

A, and her daughter are finally safe. They will never be deported back to Turkey, since their admissibility interview was positive. They also just received the refugee status in Greece! Their pain has finally been recognised, and their healing process can start.

The young mother is involved in an integration programme, dreaming about her future. She is currently learning English and she wishes one day to be an interpreter, to help other women in need.

A big thank you to Flüchtlingshilfe Doro Blancke for the support (financial and not only) so we can be by the side of the most vulnerable and deliver our services 🙏

📍 Delightful and inspired by yesterday's training on 'Response to Institutional Violence as professionals'. We tried to make sense of the forms institutional violence showing up on our daily work with children on the move and its impact on them. With a fantastic group of committed to social change professionals, we explored ways of mitigating institutional violence through our work. We all answered a big ! Yes ! to the possibility of bringing structural change through our work even if the results are not evident instantly.

Institutional violence as a phenomenon is challenging for professionals and we often find ourselves hopeless in front of its manifestations. But we did acknowledge our ability to influence children's lives and the structures of the system as well 🙏

Thank you all for your fantastic engagement and as we did promise, we will keep touching upon this issue and invite you to more workshops and trainings 📍

On 11th February 2022 – 18:00-20:00, will take place DCI-Greece's workshop on 'Response to Institutional Violence as Professionals' where Nantina Tsekeri (Director of DCI Greece) and Iris Pappa (Coordinator of Children's Rights Helpdesk -DCI Greece) will be the instructors.

To attend the workshop, please register here 📄
<https://forms.gle/mT5h78V7MWL7tjP6>

📄 Few words about the Workshop:

Children might experience serious forms of institutional violence in their effort to navigate through the asylum system in Greece, while at the same time they are lacking the opportunity to seek remedy into a restorative justice context.

❓ Where do we stand as professionals? Can we recognise in our daily work the forms it can take?
Can we actually contribute to mitigating institutional violence and what are the ways through? How we can support each other and our beneficiaries in front of institutional violence?

Through activities, discussion and exchange of good practices, we will try together to give answers to these questions. 🤝

Only by familiarising ourselves with the concept of institutional violence, we can explore and work on the ways of combating it.

!! At the end of the workshop, material will be shared with the participants that they can use in their daily work.

📄 Afterwards, you are invited in a small dinner reception at 'Nan Restaurant', Kominaki 29 street 📍

! Keep in mind that due the nature of the workshop and COVID 19 restrictions, only a limited number (25) of participants can be present. For this reason make sure to register as soon as possible. In case you cannot attend eventually, please inform us at least 2 days prior so as to reopen the spot. !

Outreaching to the people who need our support the most and delivering our services to them on a mobile way has always been the cornerstone of our Helpdesk Operation since 2016.

We feel overwhelmed by last night's deep interaction with 32 single parents and their children members of the Ivory and Congolese Brazzaville African Unions in Athens, as well as the eight minor transitioning to adulthood soon.

At the moment there are thousands of children of African origin who are forced to run away from their home country and reach Europe for safety. The majority of them are homeless and invisible to the greek state. Access to registration to lodge their asylum claims, access to food and housing, education and health services are not provided to them effectively. At the same time their parents have been experiencing serious mental health issues as result of their trafficking experience along the way.

Yesterday we tried to deliver to them proper information and legal assistance. Individually tailored support plan will be developed for each one of them in the coming weeks.

But first and foremost, we reminded them of their worth as human beings and that they won't stand alone during these difficult times. Empowerment and mentorship sessions will take place in the next months.

Because no child should be left alone. 🙏

Children in Palestine, watch their dreams shatter and their rights get violated on a daily basis
 It is our responsibility, as active citizens, to never forget their struggles and keep reminding the world their obligation to act!
 DCI Palestine, that has been providing legal help and advocating for Palestinian children actively for years, has been characterised by Israel as a terrorist organization, together with 5 other actors.
 Day by day, all these children's supportive network gets persecuted.
 When a child experiences violence, in any corner of this world, the entire world suffers, the entire justice cracks. It is a matter of concern to the entire humanity.
 In the panel discussion today organised by Amnesty International (Διεθνής Αμνηστία - Ελληνικό Τμήμα), we tried to bring some justice by advocating for the rights of the Palestinian refugee children.
 Thank you, A.I. for the great honour.
 More events coming soon!

"Everyone has the right to education. [...] Education shall be directed to the full development of the human personality and the sense of its dignity, and shall strengthen the respect for human rights and fundamental freedoms" [art. 26 of the Universal Declaration of Human Rights]

In October 2019, Greece welcomed 37.000 refugee and migrant children, 4.686 of whom were unaccompanied. The competent authorities estimated that only a third of those children (12.800) were enrolled in school.

In 2020-2021, the number of children with access to education has declined further due to several factors, one of which is the Covid-19 pandemic, which uncovered record data of exclusion of school-aged refugees (4-17 years old) from the Greek educational system.

DCI-GR, through the provision of legal support, works to ensure that children on the move are entitled to access to education and to all the necessary tools to improve their lives. Also, a very big part of our activities is doing strategic work to tackle this issue.

We demand the competent authorities to reinforce the school attendance rate and move steps towards the guarantee of access to education for children, especially for the ones who remain on the islands.

Little Jo from Congo wants us to #act4children! He came by our offices today with his mother and put a smile on our faces.

In DCI-GR single mothers and their children have always been a priority for us. Every month, we receive many requests to provide legal aid and protection services to this vulnerable target population.

According to the latest data, the majority of refugee children that are currently in Greece with are up to 11 years old and live in extreme precarious conditions.

It's our duty to stand by their side. 💜

We are very proud to introduce DCI-GR's Country of Host Information trimestral report.

The name of this report comes from the "Country of Origin Information (COI)", referring to information on countries from which asylum seekers originate.

The availability of and the expertise on COI is one of the cornerstones of decision-making in the asylum process and as such can enhance harmonization.

Through this new "Country of Host Information Report", DCI Greece wishes to shift the narrative to focus on the host country, gathering targeted, relevant, reliable, accurate and up-to-date information on Greece in a transparent and impartial manner.

With this report, we want to expertly inform the reader on the current situation and the latest developments from the ground affecting asylum-seekers and refugees in Greece, with a focus on children.

You can also find our first report here <https://bit.ly/3nDUPX>

Stay tuned for the next ones.

"Do you think I will ever be able to leave this place and start a normal life? I dream about it every night. Will it happen?"

When we first met D., he never smiled. He was unregistered, homeless full of anxiety and sadness.

We provided holistic support and legal help with his family reunification application σε πρόσφατα επεισόδια, εφόσον είναι δυνατόν, και να τα μοιράζουμε με την κοινωνία.

After a long, but rewarding process, we got a positive result.

Today, he came by the office to receive his tickets. He will join a family member in another EU country. Today, he was different. He could not stop smiling.

And, this smile, is why we keep fighting.

These services were delivered in the context of 'Themida Greece' project, in collaboration with Together for Better Days

HUMAN TRAFFICKING AWARENESS DAY

Human trafficking is a phenomenon that can affect anyone.

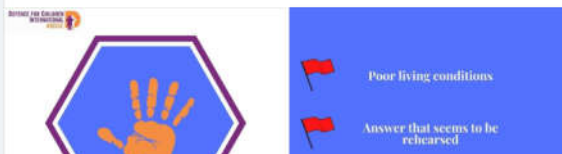

In Greece, despite the efforts in past years, anti-trafficking resources are still too limited towards a situation that has seen a worsening even after the COVID-19 pandemic. On the matter of migration, there was reportedly a lack of attempts from the Government to screen asylum-seekers and migrants for trafficking at entry points.

In the past, we pointed out some of the ways you can recognize human trafficking victims.

On this particular day, DCI-GR is tinged in blue, color universally recognized for human trafficking prevention, in order to support all the victims that we assist and that every day land on Greek territory.

Help us RECOGNIZE, REPORT and IMPROVE the lives of those who fall victim to this unlawful act.

-What do you want this year to bring you?

- Peace of mind. I want to receive my asylum, so I will never have to worry again me and my baby will be sent back to my country. I hope this nightmare ends this year.

N., single mother, Congo

N. is one of the 33 single mothers on the move we have been supporting, during the last months. She was a victim of trafficking back in her country, and throughout her whole journey to Europe. Due to lack of proper legal aid, she received a rejection on her asylum application on the first degree.

We have been supporting her with her asylum, while making sure she and her 2 year old daughter receive support to cover their basic needs in the meantime.

Let's hope this year, will be a year of change, a year where all individuals on the move will finally be safe and protected.

Happy New Year!!!! 🌱🌱🌱

And happy birthday to refugee children in Greece! 1/1 is the date that the majority of refugee children are registered as born in their asylum card.

In most cases, identification documents from their countries of origin are not accepted. As a result, the age assessment procedure fails them. The birth day registered is most of the times 1/1

This creates multiple problems, since children sometimes appear as adults from 1/1, even though they are not. Because of that, they are deprived of basic rights, such as access to education, access to the the family reunification procedure or a safe shelter.

There is a long way to go until children on the move can enjoy all their rights and live a dignified life. It's our duty to keep fighting for them.

"I lost both my parents during a conflict in my town. I fled my country and went through a lot of suffering. In Greece, I lived on the streets for several months. Now I live in a shelter but I am still recovering from all those traumas."

In Greece, single mothers on the move and their children are one of the most vulnerable groups. A large number of them, especially of African descent, have fallen victims of human trafficking.

This holiday season, help us remain by their side to ensure safety, protection and cover basic needs.

In Greece, countless children remain alone and unprotected, even though they have family members in another EU country and have the right to legally join them. Proper legal aid is crucial in such cases. However, many of those children, do not receive it, something that makes them an easy prey for people that wish to exploit them.

This Christmas, consider buying a gift for humanity, a gift to a child in need. ❤️
